A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

Claim 19 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Miyawaki 5717473.

Claim 19 includes a substrate shown in Miyawaki figure 11c as the bottom element labeled SiO₂, a picture element electrode on the substrate, element 1839, a tft for driving, element 1842 (and surrounding portions), and a conductive light shielding layer (shown the crosshatched contact point to the TFT with no number given) as , with the conductive light shielding layer in on the flattening layer (the layer below is shown as having a flat upper surface and a non-flat lower surface, thereby illustrating “flattening”).
